

Half-day Workshop on
Exploring the Key Issues in
Counselling Families with Adolescents

Parenting is a challenging task in the 21st century, and parenting adolescents even more challenging! Repeatedly we learn from the media about adolescent schizophrenia, drug addiction, web-addiction, school bullying, homosexuality, sexual abuse, suicide,....etc. Adolescents discover that they are no longer children, and that their parents could no longer “control” them like before. They are ready to explore the world. In their eagerness to fly, they become overconfident about their own abilities, and are very aversive to constraints and supervision. Parents, on the other hand, find their children exposed to different scary outside influences, but at the same time, not as amenable to their supervision and guidance as before. Suddenly they find the previous parenting methods no longer work, but feel at a loss about what to do instead. Tension in the family naturally increases quickly.

As helping professionals, we try to help by educating parents about the developmental characteristics of adolescents, by exhorting parents to spend more time with their adolescents and to demonstrate more care, and by teaching communication skills. Are such help enough? Depending on who we happen to be working with, we may feel confused and may find ourselves alternately take the side of either the parents or the adolescents, but we may not always be able to look at their struggles from both angles. This workshop aims at exploring some common issues and challenges in the relationships and dynamics between parents and their adolescent children, and relevant counseling skills will be introduced. The workshop is suitable for all professionals who work with adolescents and/or their families.

The Trainer:

Mrs. Laurene MAN (文盧麗萍女士) is now in private counseling in her own office in Central. She received her BSW and M.Soc.Sc.(SW) from the University of Hong Kong and studied major family therapy approaches from different teachers, some of them masters of the approaches. She has been in family service and/or family counseling work for 34 years, both in Hong Kong and in Canada. She was the Service Supervisor of the counseling service teams in the Yang Centre and the Hong Kong Christian Service. In addition to her continuous frontline clinical work, she has also actively involved in professional training and clinical/live supervisions throughout her career, both for her own counseling teams, for other social service agencies, taught family Therapy in the HKU-MSW program and conducted counseling workshops for the Hong Kong Social Workers Association. Mrs. Man had been the writer for Ming Pao Weekly column “Parent-child Talk”, was the host-writer for Ming Pao Daily column “Family Letterbox”, and has been a frequently interviewed guest in media features on related topics. She is a mother of two previously adolescent but now grown-up daughters. Mrs. Man has conducted many workshops for the Interventions on Suicide, on Family Violence, and on Counselling Skills for different client groups and received positive feedback.
